HIGH SCHOOL OF CHARLESTON
ENTER TO LEARN - LEAVE TO SERVE

Alma Mater

Come! Gather All, let's sing a song,
In voices loud and clear;
Let's sing the praise of Charleston High,
Our Alma Mater dear.

Raise high her colors, Garnet, Gold,
Her teachings ever hear;
With Bantams for our mascots,
We will have no cause to fear.

THE SKIPPER

We Salute

We, the staff of THE CHARLESTONIAN, wish to salute our skipper John Rogers, and in appreciation for this year of smooth sailing wish to dedicate the 1952 edition to him who has guided us unerringly throughout.

OFFICERS

The valiant crew of the good ship "Charlestonian," respectfully salutes its officers, in appreciation of their co-operation and inspiration, in our work, to make this ship the best in any port.

Last Will and Testament

I, Wesley Andrews, will leave my love for women to Robert Bonifay.

I, Jack Baker, leave my typewriter in Mr. James' class to Pee-Wee.

I, Milton Baltzegar, leave to Johnny Easterby my sincerest hopes that some day he will get out of school.

I, Britton Baxley, leave to anyone who can get it, my desk to the right of Mr. Gibbs.

I, Margaret Beck, leave my ability to fall asleep in Mr. Breibart's class to Marjorie Johnston, hoping she will benefit more from her beauty naps than I did.

I, Carl Bierfischer, accept my parole and depart.

I, Harold Bray, leave all my five years of hard work and trouble to anyone who wishes to accept them.

I, Carolyn Bridgman, hereby bequeath my book of 1,000 alibis to leave class, to Maurice Bridgman.

I, Donald Button, hereby bequeath my little black book to George Arnot. Seems like the poor boy can't hustle a date.

I, Anna Chrisanthis, hereby bequeath my ability to make time fly to Tula Carosatos who has two more years to go, and to my brother, Tony, my Latin notes.

I, Ann Clark, hereby leave my place at dress parade to Betty Dalton.

I, Carol Clark, hereby leave my sister, Joyce Harbor, my haircut.

I, Eugene Collins, leave my position as president of the Hi-Y Club to some rising senior.

I, Patsy Creech, do hereby leave my ability to pass Mr. Gibbs' 12th English to Carolyn Nance and Mary E. Smith.

I, Nella Creech, hereby leave my ability to get big football players that I want, to Beverly Haffers.

I, Charles Driggers, have nothing to will, because "I shall return".

I, Robert Dudley, leave my ability to some future library assistant, to do their work as well as I have done.

I, Morton Ellison, leave my "dingle" with Mr. Gibbs to Charles Driggers who will be back next year.

I, Robert Fetter, bequeath my ability to understand abstract paintings to Mr. Gibbs.

I, Jimmy Godwin, hereby leave the Key Club to any poor unsuspecting Junior (Hobart) who becomes president. Also a belt for Pee-Wee Williams to hold his pants up.

I, Colleen Hamilton, hereby leave to Margie Johnston as happy a life with her Citadel cadet, as I have with mine.

I, Sondley Hamrick, leave my dingle with the teachers to Stinky Renken.

I, Paul Hass, leave my dingle with Mr. Briebart to any lucky Junior who thinks they can get it.

I, Emma Henson, hereby bequeath all the many joys and tribulations this "good book" has given me to Miss Walsh and next year's unsuspecting editor.

I, Mary Hope, leave to Pauline O'Rourke all my extra poundage.

I, Ronald Howerton, the retiring senior of old Charleston High, will my African laugh to Walter Prause.

I, Ann Hunt, bequeath my inability to make up my mind to Patty Mengedoht.

I, Delores Hunter, hereby leave my ability to find out information to Bob Graman.

I, Earle Jennings, being of sound mind and body hereby bequeath my amiable fellowship with all the faculty.

I, Shirley Johnson, hereby bequeath my ability to make forward passes to some up and rising football player.

I, Mary Johnson, do hereby leave Delores Hunter and Nella Creech.

I, Tattnall Kollock, leave my fight against "bellhops" to Jimmy Hobart, and hope he has better luck on Saturday nights, getting dates with East Bay girls.

I, Pano Lamis, bequeath my ability to study during the lunch periods to anyone who needs the time.

I, Pano Liatos, leave my usual week's growth of beard, and dull razor blades to Chris Theos.

I, Ann Livingstain, leave the privilege of using my locker, Mr. Gibbs closet, to Janet Givner.

I, Jimmy Manos, do hereby leave my empty beer mug to my friend Bobby Mallard.

I, Carr Meadowcroft, being of sound mind and body, hereby leave my astounding ability to get along with Mr. Gibbs, to any Junior unlucky enough to inherit it.

I, Erny Medlin, leave my caustic sense of humor to Barbara Stall and "Boopy" Watkins (don't worry, there's enough for both!)

I, Mary Morrow, hereby will Nancy Jordan, my ability to catch a Citadel man and keep him.

I, Dick Morton, commit unto any peon who has felt the pangs of hunger, my art of hustling.

I, June Murray, leave "Squeeky", the mouse who lives in my locker, to Pauline O'Rourke, because she likes sweets and will keep him well-fed.

I, Jasper Owens, wish that my locker be left to Harold Bray in case he doesn't pass.

I, Angelica Pavlatos, bequeath my brains to the coming seniors.

I, Ann Pittman, hereby will and bequeath my private table at the Yacht Club to Ephie Seabrook.

I, John Henry Rathgen, leave my honesty, love for teachers, and fair mindedness, to Beverly Dotterer, coming up senior.

I, Patricia Reamy, hereby will and bequeath to Margie Johnston my ability to get out of school every day at 11:45.

I, William Rentz, leave my favorite expression, "If you don't succeed at first, try again"; — the voice of experience.

I, Jack Ritchart, leave my ability to steer with my knees to Carl Renken and to Pee-Wee the ability to find fault with any typewriter in Mr. James' class.

I, Bobbie Jean Rogers, hereby leave my ability to play football to Bob Graman.

I, Christine Savvas, leave my typing ability to the dream typists, Helen Branks and Bobby Mallard.

I, Ann Schmonsees, leave all my hours during first periods wandering through the hall to any one who wants them.

I, Joyce Shealy, leave my chewing gum privileges to some poor junior.

I, John Stamatiades, bequeath to some rising senior the ability to work late and come to school on time.

I, John Stuhr, will my brain to someone who's twice as dumb as me.

I, Jean Sughrue, hereby bequeath my ability to burn myself in chemistry.

I, Billy Todd, hereby bequeath to my lowly brother, George, my ability to make A's in Mr. Gibbs' class, which I forgot to use.

I, Harriet Travers, wish next year's basketball team and unsuspecting captain, a perfect season, and to Jean Rouse, I leave my place in lunch-line.

I, Julian Walker, bequeath the command of this ship to next year's president with fervent hope that he will encounter smooth sailing due to the same type of fine support that I received this year.

I, Julian Westbury, will my ability to flunk English to some "lowly junior" who may do better than I did under Mr. Gibbs.

LOG

WE REMEMBER stepping long, long ago upon the deck of the Memminger and finding ourselves small, insignificant persons, (except in our own eyes), in a strange world. We look back upon that first year of apprentice-ship, living the wildly rocking life of the cabin boys. Generally ignored, we found that all we could do was gamely keep our heads above water. Clinging together for support, we braved the caustic storms and gales provided by the petty officers and midshipmen as we gazed cow-eyed glare-blinded from afar at the ensigns, who went about with their wise heads up among the sails and never presumed to acknowledge our existence. We performed our humble duties and then, before we knew it, or thought it possible, the long year of apprentice-ship was over, and having been called before our captain, we received our grades and promotions. Lo, and behold! we had climbed a rung of the ladder; the year of initiation and self-pity was over. We the "land-lubbers" were well on the way to becoming well-hardened "sea-biscuits".

After the summer ashore, we learned that the Memminger was to be drydocked, never to be boarded again and soon to be scuttled. As we were transferred, and stepped aboard the good ship Charleston High, we thought lingeringly and reminiscently of our old mother ship. We were loyal then and meant to be so forever. A change had been made in the command, Captain Henry Strohecker had been given charge of a larger ship and taking his place was Captain David Stoney. Quickly he adapted himself to the duty of guiding such a ship with all of its six hundred crew members, and holding the wheel with a steady hand, he became much respected. Meanwhile we, with an air of slightly supercilious disdain looked down upon the inconsequential movements of the cabin boys and promptly forgot we had ever been recruits. As time went on, we became interested in extra-curriculum activities, and embraced afternoon sports with every free moment from the duties of every up (and wishing to be), coming sailors. We plunged into the study of languages and visualized, a little pessimistically, the day when we'd step upon those foreign shores, able to put our knowledge to use. So another voyage soon was completed and again promotion and plans for the future hove in sight.

Once more, at sea, and aboard the Charleston High, we found ourselves as midshipmen, irritably near our goal, yet actually with quite a course ahead of us still. Meanwhile a dream of the previous year was becoming a reality. Alongside the main cabin of our ship a gymnasium was being erected, a dream was being built. We now were really a full-fledged ship. The majority of our sports now had a home-base. How proud we were! As this, our third voyage, drew to a close we were striving to achieve a position of authority and responsibility, that we might reach the dock and face our last year with one definite job—at least—in our hands.

Then unbelievably, at last, our mother-ship (for we thought of her as that by now) nosed out of the harbor, and we held lines of power in our hands. We were ensigns and the very thought and its ultimate goal thrilled us. But before we were to reach the future, we had the present to cope with. We were want to play, thinking ourslves to be holding a definite guarantee in our hands. Again the command had changed. Captain Stoney was promoted, and into his position stepped Captain John Rogers. With a miraculous skill he held those lines of importance before us, showed us their weight and then handed them back. Under his stern but kind command we began to realize how important that last voyage was to be, and worked accordingly. It was a busy trip. The majority of us found that the old tale about the ensign's duties being the easiest, astonishingly incorrect. We joined, and alternately ran clubs; went away on innumerable conventions, and studied hard also. All the while we strived toward that final glorious day.

At last that day has arrived, thanks to the persevering guidance of the Captain and the other officers; we have come to the ultimate time of joy. Through rough weather and smooth, we have journeyed, and now the good ship the Charleston High's bow has touched the dock. There is an immense band ready to greet us and all honor and glory is ours. We have but to put out a hand and the world will be ours, we have but to step from the deck, and we shall begin another episode of our lives. Though our joy at this moment is supreme, though we face the future with eager hearts—we cannot help but look back as we climb down that gang-plank. Yes, we look back for one more glance at the Charleston High's gallant hulk, and the memory remains forever in our hearts.

CABIN THREE

MISS OLGA JOHANNS

The rhythmetic beat of a medley of voices comes from the porthole of Cabin 3. Looking in, we see students engrossed not as it would seem by a lesson on the rhumba, but an English class learning the ups and downs of poetry and its structure. At its head stands that attractive and able officer Miss Olga Johanns. It was she primarily, who introduced English, in its technical form to us, and helped make it understandable. It is much due to her that we learned to stand squarely upon our feet and make short constructive speeches. In homeroom she guided us with a steady hand, continually teaching us to be responsible for ourselves, yet she was always ready to assist with our problems. With the memory of that officer herself, throughout our future lives, there will remain a grateful memory of the fundamentals of what she has taught us.

CABIN FIVE

If you should glance through the porthole of Cabin 5 . . ., no, we cannot predict what you might find. The homeroom or the English class, as it may be, might be rocking with laughter. (Their officer has just told one of his famous anecdotes). They might be sieltn, on the verge of tears, (their officer reads a poem) or a less oppressive quiet as he reads his beloved Dickens. The day may be hot, the room crowded—yet this period does not drag much, for holding the sheet of the mainsail is a man we all respect—a man who treats us as individuals, who steers us endlessly and untiringly year after year. We shall miss his favorite phrase "As a matter of fact". As a matter of fact we shall miss that officer, Mr. John E. Gibbs, and never forget him.

Football Bantams

This year the C. H. S. Bantams took on some of the biggest teams in the state and still came out with "sharp spurs." The green Bantam squad, tutored by Coaches "Ed" McLendon and "Hank" Carver, was ably led by quarterback Johnnie Easterby and sparked by center "Al" LaTorre, the co-captain of the team.

The season started with the defeat of B. E. H. S. This compensated for the loss to those rivals the season before. On the otherhand the Cooper River Blue Devils turned the table and kept up the "teeter-toter", record of the Thanksgiving Day Classic.

The squad got off to a fine start with a week of training in the mountains. This brought the boys closer together and brought a sharp team back home. With a large number of new boys, there was a lot to be learned. This knowledge often comes the hard way, and consequently the team was

The primary purpose of this year's Student Council has been to establish firmly the principles provided for in the new constitution which was adopted last year. With this set of rules to follow, the students' governing body has introduced to the school various clubs and committees and furthered those which were already established.

The Dramatic Club was organized early this year and has functioned exceptionally well. The Debate Club is also a new addition to the many extra-curricular activities offered at Charleston High. A lost and found department was established to meet a growing demand and has proved of high value to the entire school. The Buildings and Grounds Committee has functioned exceptionally well in performing its duties. The Inter-Club Council, which acts as a clearing-house for any conflicts that may arise among clubs, was put into actual operation this year.

The working members of the annual, with the aid of the Parent Teacher Association presented a Variety Show which proved to be a great success.

Delegates were sent to both the district and state meetings of the South Carolina Association of Student Councils. Charleston High's Council is affiliated with the state as well as the national organization.

Representatives were selected through the Student Council to participate in Citizenship Day.

Student Council Academic Awards were presented to those seniors who deserved them.

By securing permission to hold its meetings at a class period once every other week, the Student Council has been able to function with much more efficiency than in the past.

A final aim this year has been to make the student body as a whole recognize the Student Council as its growing organization and not as just another club. When this is finally achieved, then only will the goals of Student Council be fully met.

With a few diligent staff workers—out of many—The Bantam set a high standard with the first issue out two weeks after school began.

As sponsor of the annual Miss C. H. S. contest, The Bantam initiated the new idea for Charleston High of each major club selecting a representative for the contest. Through five issues, we brought the student body news and features of our school.

The working staff of the Charlestonian, which is composed of elected students of the Senior Class, has worked faithfully and tirelessly to give you an attractive record of friends and events you will want to remember, when the present time becomes a memory.

Much of the credit for this publication of the Charlestonian goes to Miss Mae Walsh, the advisor to the 1952 Charlestonian.

The course has been rough many times, but due to the tireless efforts of our Captain and able Crew, we are safely anchored, in our home port.

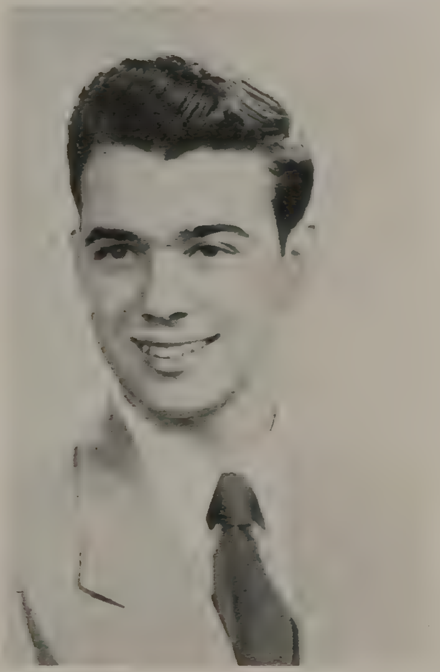
KEY CLUB



JAMES GODWIN
President

This year the Charleston High School Key Club, in its constant drive to promote leadership, character, and service, did much to better the well-being of the school and community. The more notable activities were:

Publishing football programs.

Sponsoring of homecoming ceremonies.

Sponsoring Miss Hi Miss contest.

Sponsoring Key Club Queen in Miss C. H. S. contest.

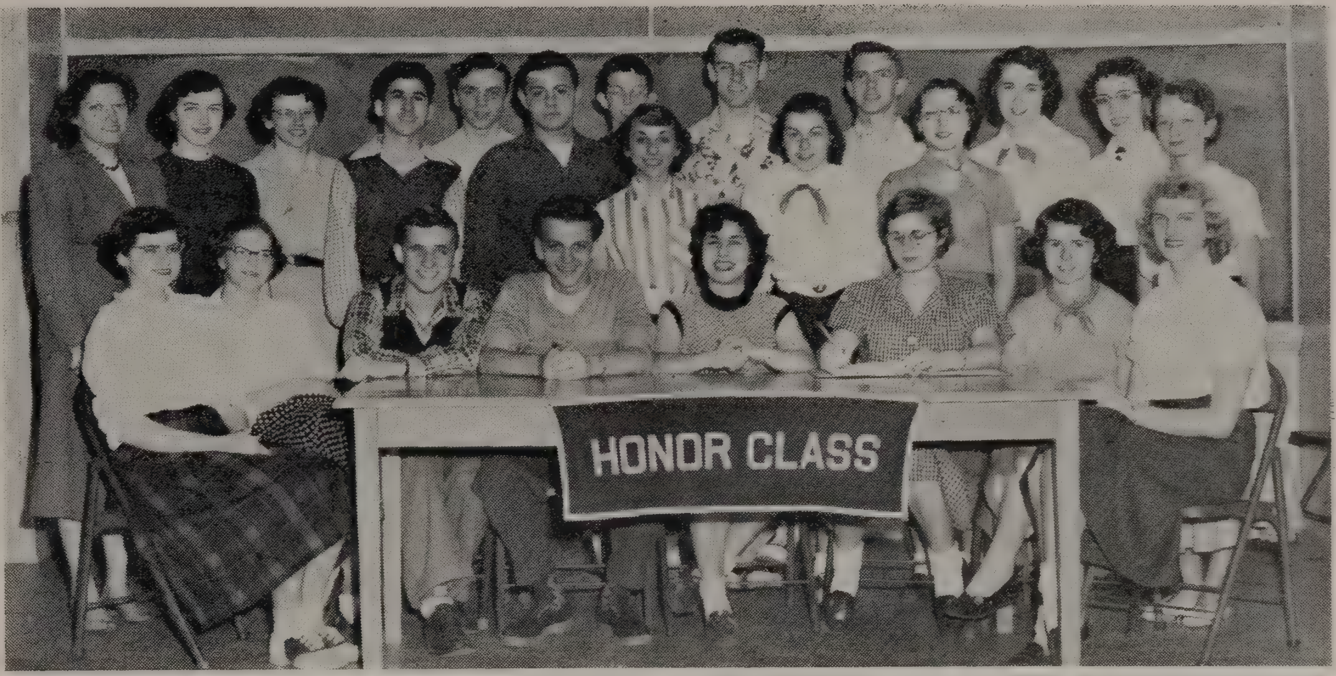
Sponsoring Christmas welfare drive.

Keeping library trophies polished.

Sending delegates to district convention in Asheville.

Having hayride and "patch-party."

Besides official Key Club activities, the members took part in the business of numerous other school and community organizations.



D. Button, A. Chrisanthis, L. Coker, S. Dotterer, L. Drowota, S. Garfinkel, J. Hobart, S. Johnson, P. Lamis, A. Livingstain, J. Murray, J. Newton, J. Rouse, P. Stokes, H. Travers, J. Walker.

National Honor Society

The highest and most coveted academic honor at the High School of Charleston is membership in this chapter of The National Honor Society. To be chosen as a candidate for membership in this organization a student must meet the qualifications of the four Cardinal Principles of the Society—Character, Scholarship, Leadership, and Service. The monthly meetings are held at night at the high school.

As a service to the school, the annual major project of the Society is the selling of supplies to the students. The Honor Banner (shown above) is presented each month to the home room with the highest percentage of honor roll students. College Day, at which colleges and universities throughout the state and southeast are represented, is sponsored annually by this organization.

Our chapter is affiliated with the South Carolina Federation of National Honor Societies, and many members attended the state convention held recently at Columbia High School in Columbia. Serving as president at the convention was one of our members, Donald Button; again one of our members was elected to a state office when Beverly Dotterer was chosen to serve as Publicity Director for the coming year. Our chapter is one of the most active in the state.

Officers 1951-1952: Anna Chrisanthis, President; Donald Button, Vice-President; Beverly Dotterer, Secretary; Miss Olga Johanns, Treasurer and Faculty Advisor.

DRAMATIC SOCIETY

One of the dreams of the students became a reality this year when a Dramatic Society was finally formed at our high school. All the people who were interested in forming such a club met in a class room one day after school and set a time and place for regular meetings; officers were elected, and immediately the members started working on a skit to be presented in the auditorium for the Library. The skit was a success and the Society was on its way, so we undertook to present a one-act play at Christmas as a part of the last assembly program before the Christmas holidays. With another success tucked in our books, we decided to undertake a major production sometime in the spring. Again the Society is reaching a goal for the production is to be presented May 6, and we are sure that it will be a most enjoyable production.

Membership in the Dramatic Society is open to any student in the high school interested in any phase of dramatics or dramatic production. The regular meetings are semi-monthly and are held at the High School of Charleston. With the profits from the major production the Society hopes to buy some much needed equipment for use in future plays. The main ideal of the Society is to promote cooperation, develop responsibility and dramatic ability among the students.

TO THE MEMBERS OF THE FACULTY AND STUDENT BODY OF THE
HIGH SCHOOL OF CHARLESTON

As Mayor of the City of Charleston, I congratulate you on the outstanding work you are doing. One of the main hopes for world peace is the complete and truthful education of our young people.

The High School of Charleston has always been one of the leading educational institutions of its kind in the South and has educated many of our business and professional leaders. As long as there are institutions of learning, such as this in our midst, we can hope for a peaceful and progressive future.

Cordially,
William McG. Morrison
